Tradition and Renewal

1479-1536

1537-1820

University of Copenhagen was founded in 1479
The Global Development programme came to life in 2014, with the first Masters in August 2016

1894-1990

But we already have strong traditions!

To boldly go where no man has gone before

The Shingouz society is remarkably honest and strong on solidarity. They are always ready to help each other, and they put everything they have in common so resources use is as efficient as possible.

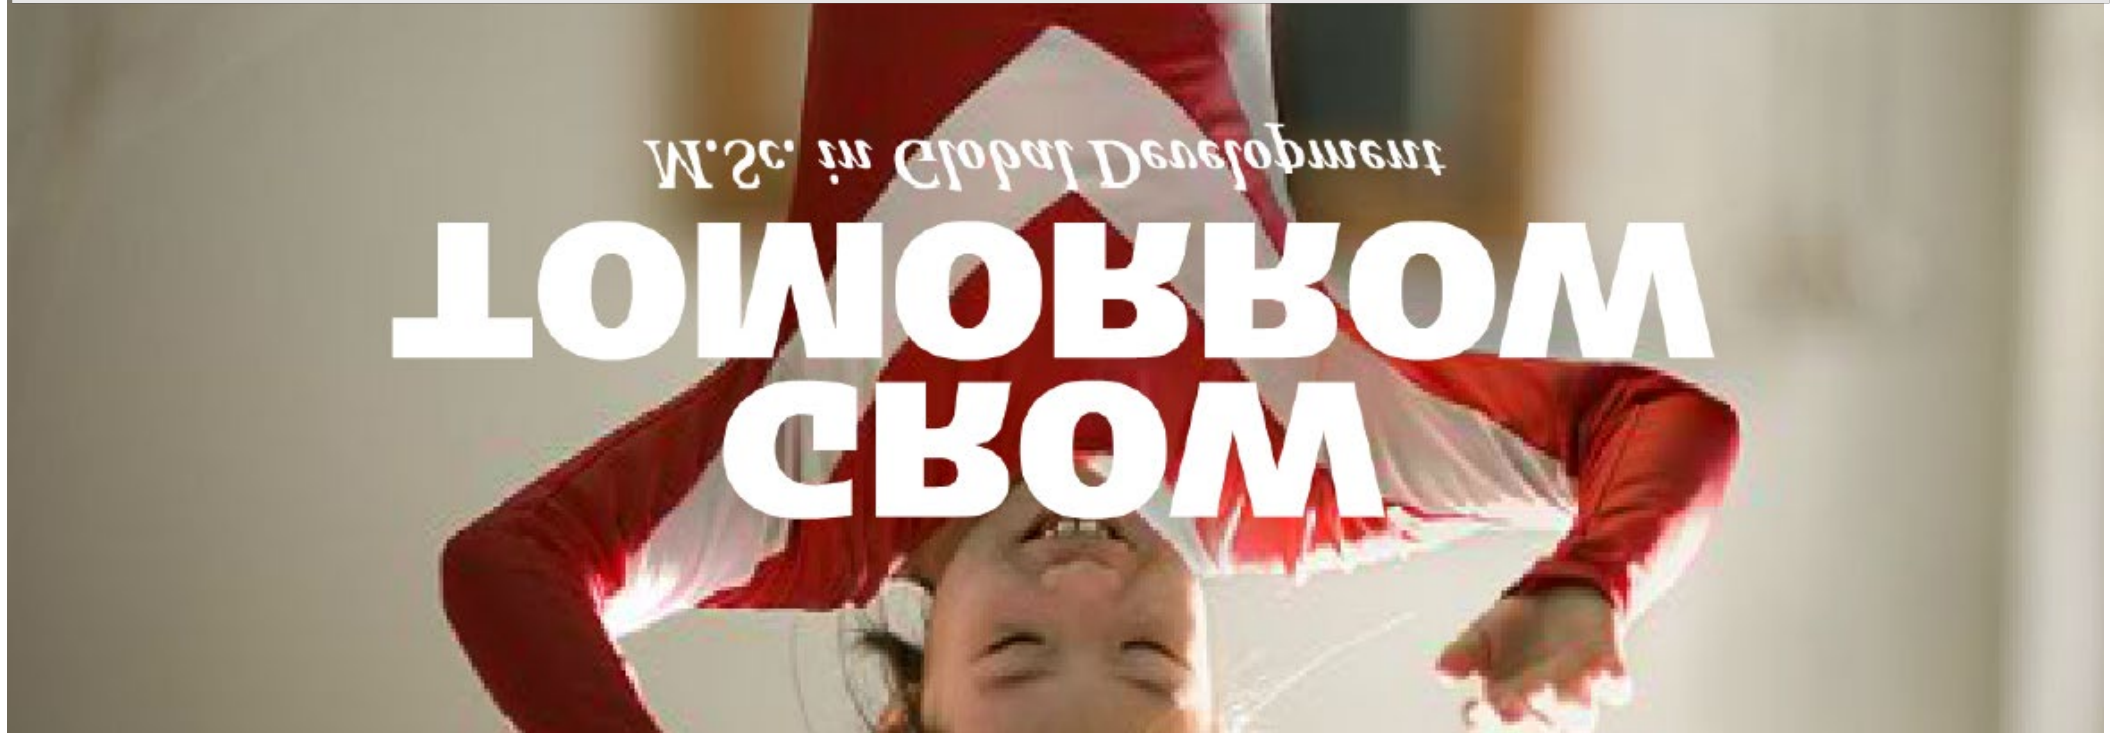

The Shingouz has a robust reputation among intelligence experts, politicians, corporate leaders, etc..

They are reliable, efficient, likely can get the goods even when no one else can, and they never lie.

Looking Beyond

What are you aiming for?

UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN

What are you aiming for?

Task:

1. Please group into random groups of maximum 5 members
2. Each group member must talk about her/his employment goal 3-4 years from now, if such a goal exists. If you have no goal or only a vague idea, that's fine—say it out loud.

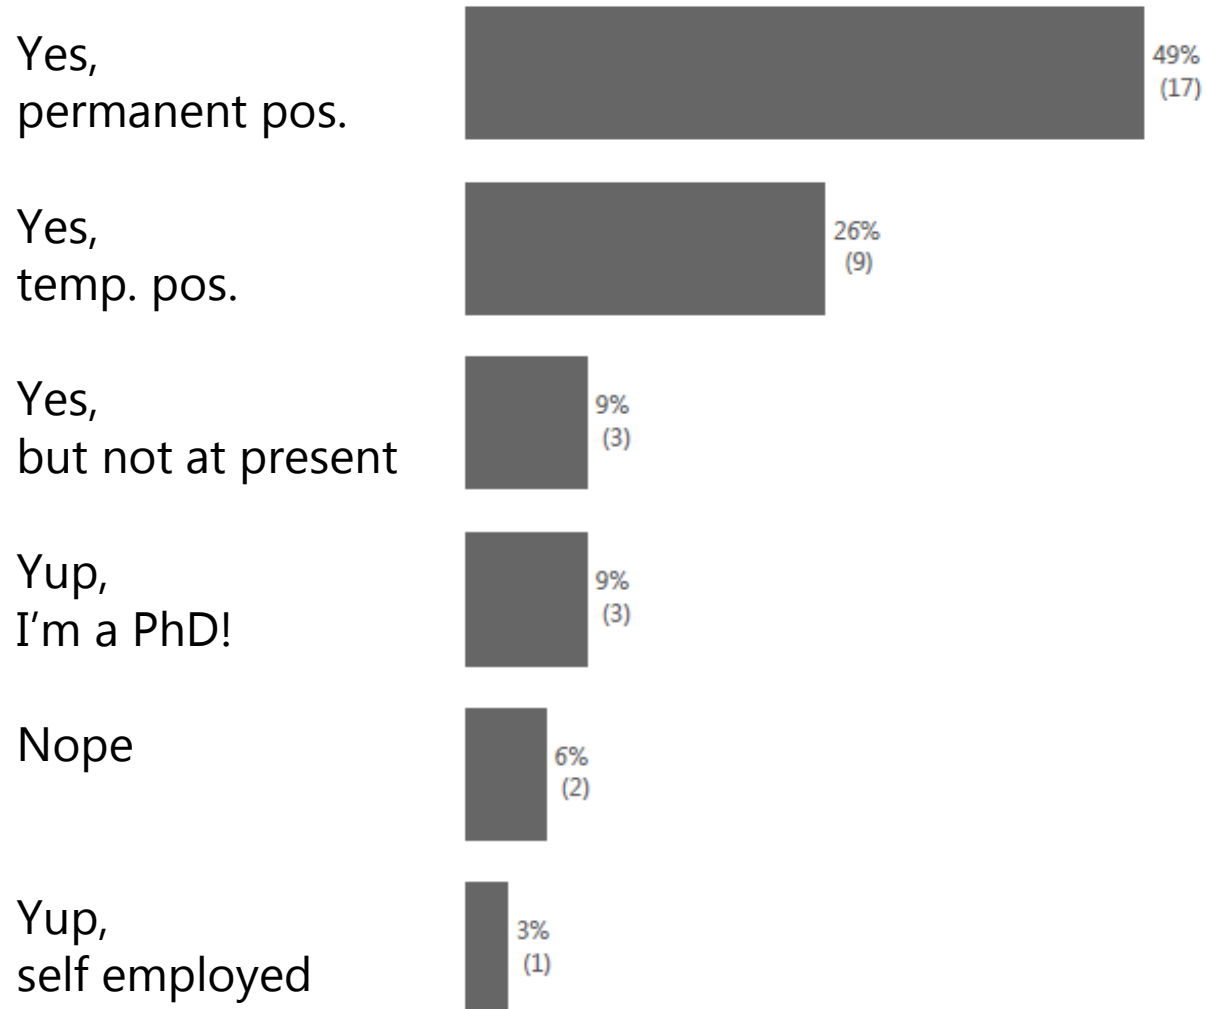

What did we think?

The study programme paves the way for several types of employment depending on your specialisation during the second year of the programme.

- Many candidates will go on to jobs in private companies interacting with the Global South
- Other graduates find employment in institutions and organisations engaged in development work and other international issues.
- There is considerable potential for production companies, service businesses and consultants in the global markets, especially in the BRICS countries (Brazil, Russia, India, China, South Africa) and in the new growth countries, for example Indonesia, Mexico, Turkey and several African countries. Graduates of this new study programme can help realise this potential.
- After graduating, you can look forward to working as a consultant, adviser, project manager or analyst in businesses, organisations and authorities involved in international and/or development activities.
- The programme can also lead to a research career within global development.

The Other Side: Graduates from 2018 and 2019

Are you employed (or have you been employed)

The most and least important elements for landing your first job—as stated by the graduates

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. The education | 6. My activities abroad |
| 2. The internship | 7. My grades |
| 3. My student job | 8. I'm an entrepreneur |
| 4. My network | |
| 5. My thesis | 12. My volunteer work |

You will probably also end up working: Unemployment rate, quarters after completed education

The figure shows how the unemployment rates are steeply decreasing throughout the second year following graduation and continue to decrease during the third year.

You are not alone

In 2021, University of Copenhagen had

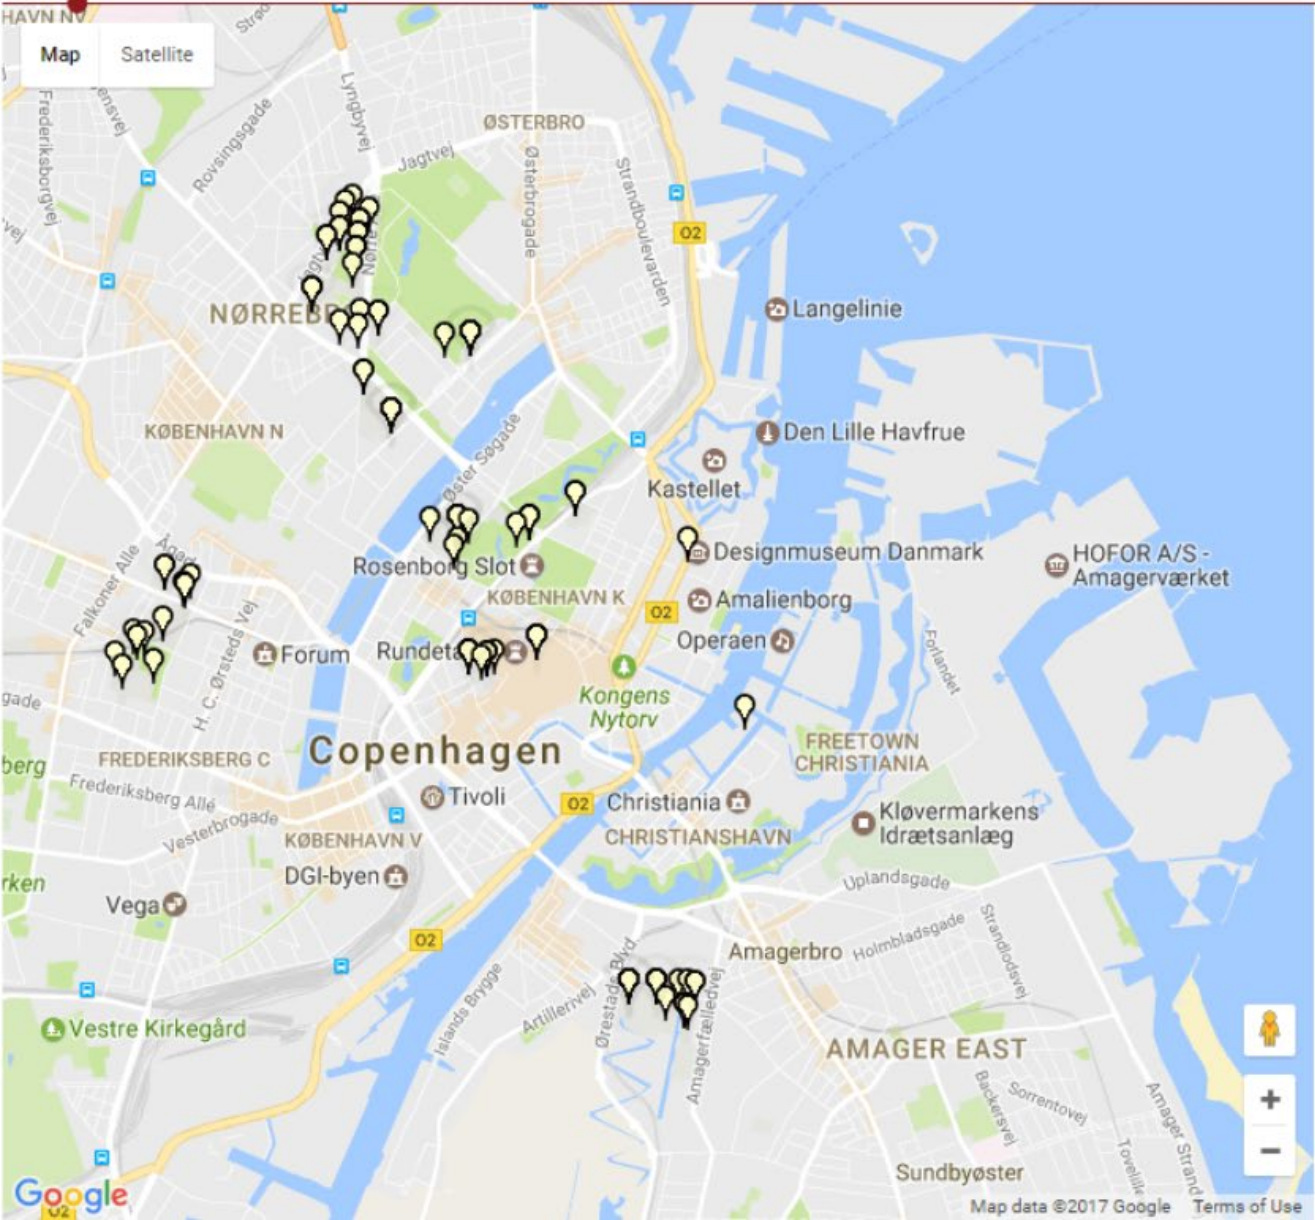

- 36,897 students
 - (think: almost 40,000; the size of Altenburg, Wageningen, Køge)
- of which 3,681 were international full-degree students (1.214 from outside Europe)
- 5,311 researchers (9,982 employees in total)
- 9 Nobel Prize Laureates (well, from 1903 to 1984)
- 37 Heads of State (Statsministre in Denmark)
- 6 faculties (Science, Health, Humanities, Social Sciences, Theology, Law)
 - Hosting 36 departments and more than 200 research centres
