

ACTORY

Actory is a playground, a workshop, a laboratory and a community for students who want to create sustainable change in the real world, both in the short and long term.

Actory is for all university students and you can meet students from other programmes

Why join:

- Become part of a larger community
- Meet others who are interested in sustainability
- Learn about sustainability, idea development, project management and collaborating in teams.
- Get something great for your CV
- It is free to participate

How can you join Actory:

23 – 25 September: Participate in Open Innovation Circularity. A weekend where you together with other students and companies develop new sustainable solutions – Everyone can participate – you don't need to know anything about innovation in advance!

You can read more and register here

25 October – 29 November: Take part in our innovation course: Sustainability & Health – Shaping the future together. Where you participate in 3 workshops - and together with other students develop new sustainable solutions. Read more and sign up here.

In addition, we regularly publish new activities
